Hello,

I am responding over email because I can not be available for my call in time because I am working.

Black people in Canada make up less than 10% of Toronto's population and yet make up 70% of deadly police shootings. This shows an incredible bias that in no way is impacted by investing in more training or equipment such as body cameras.

First Nations, Inuit and Métis ppl make up 5% of the population, and yet account for 22% of murders by police. An indigenous person in Canada is 10 times more likely to be shot and killed by police officers than a white Person in Canada. They also make up 30% of the inmates in our prisons.

Even with national attention scrutinizing how police operate in our city, cops are using pepper spray on protestors outside of Mayor Tory's residence and then lying about it's use when a picture was taken.

I'm learning about how ineffective SIU is when officers involved in the killing of Regis-Korchinski-Paquet do not even have to speak to investigators (who are staffed by former police themselves).

This system is broken and nothing you are doing is working. You don't collect data, you make citizens fear for their lives and you implement fixes that do not have any history of truly bringing these stark numbers down. Your protectors in City Council are currently asking for a bailout or else homelessness and public transportation are on the budget chopping block, meanwhile a motion to defund by even 10% of your budget was shot down.

Racism is inherent and has been measured in your officers and the system they work inside. Why have you not made this the number one priority of all departments to combat?
