Personally, I like the idea of the AI implementation. That's actually my job. However, it's important to keep the controls in place that mitigate the risks mentioned above. It's also important to have a review scheduled to identify if the police staff is following those controls and how effective these are and also regular updates to the controls. AI is a beautiful field as soon as you are transparent with the public and is managed and tested in a controles environment. Good luck!